DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Erickson.

Erickson shows, figure 2, a centrally coordinated communication systems with multiple broadcast data objects and response tracking. The system has databases 24, 34, and 36 (one or more document repositories). Database 24 (global content directory) includes classes (30) with a class and product hierarchy. Buyers, sellers, class, and product all interrelated and cross-referenced. Databases use field identifiers or "pointers". Server 50, "Database access/update processing" acts as a search interface (see "info request" 56), a security interface (access decrypt, also note that portions of transactional documents are released at times denoting access levels) and an intelligence module (update, reissue). Note column 8, line 18 where a predefined (standard) set of information is used. Note column 7, line 63 where a selected (unique) set of information is used. From the bottom of column 2 and top of column 3, "the system and method of the present invention utilize a service provider that maintains a database of information about various buyers, suppliers, products, and services. All these may be grouped by classifications and/or products or product lines.” By maintaining databases the reference shows that this information saved in the database is used (reissued) for a current (first) transaction and future (second) transaction.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 12/26/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant asserts that the prior does not store transactional user documents. The examiner does not concur. Applicant is reading limitations into the claim that do not exist. First, the term “transactional user document” does not exist in applicant's specification, so there is no special definition for this term. The prior art shows database fields, which store information about buyers, suppliers, products and services. Each database entry constitutes a document. Buyers and suppliers are related to users in a transaction.

Applicant asserts that does not show updates of information related to a second transaction. The examiner does not concur. “Information related” is about as broad as one can get. The examiner asserts that updating the cross-referenced database with current buyer information is “information related” a second transaction.

Arguments are repeated for claims 11, 23 and 35.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
